SOURCES OF SUPPLY OF COMMODITIES COVERED BY FEDERAL SPECIFICATIONS

Lists of manufacturers who have expressed their desire to supply material in accordance with certain Federal specifications promulgated by the Federal Specifications Board, and their willingness to certify to the purchasers, upon request, that the material thus supplied complies with the requirements and tests of these specifications, and is so guaranteed by them.

The lists are continuously subject to revision and enlargement. From time to time additions are being made to both the number of lists of "willing-to-certify" manufacturers, and the number of manufacturers on the individual lists.

Purchasers who might be inclined to do business with unknown or untried manufacturers whose names appear on the "willing-to-certify" lists should not fail to insist upon receiving from such manufacturers properly signed certificates guaranteeing compliance with the specification requirements.

In order to avoid delay and confusion, when placing orders and requesting certificates from "willing-to-certify" manufacturers, the correspondence should always be conducted with the individual officer of the company whose name appears on the "willing-to-certify" list. This officer can be assumed to be familiar with the specification and with the plan for issuing certificates, whereas other officers of the same company may be unfamiliar therewith.

It is to be definitely understood that the certificates are to be issued by the manufacturers to the purchasers, and not to the Bureau of Standards, which assumes no responsibility of any kind in connection with the transaction. The purchaser must take such steps as he considers desirable to determine whether or not the commodities delivered do actually comply with the specifications.

A list of all known commercial testing laboratories throughout the country, classified according to commodities and localities, has been prepared by the Bureau of Standards for the convenience of both the producers and the consumers - the manufacturers and the purchasers. This list, together with a list of college research laboratories, is issued as Bureau of Standards Miscellaneous Publication No. 90, under the title, "Directory of Commercial Testing and College Research Laboratories". It is for sale exclusively by the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. Price 15 cents per copy.

FACILITATING THE USE OF SPECIFICATIONS

An analysis of the status of the making and the utilization of specifications reveals the fact that many excellent specifications well recognized throughout industry are not being widely used at the present time because of the inability on the part of most purchasers to determine whether or not commodities delivered correspond to the specification requirements. A great impetus to the popularizing of the use of specifications could be given by eliminating this disadvantage to the small-quantity purchaser.

As a solution to the problem of eliminating the above-mentioned disadvantage and thereby facilitating the use of specifications, use is being made of the so-called "certification plan".

Certification Plan

In carrying out this plan there are compiled lists of manufacturers who have expressed their desire to supply material in accordance with certain selected specifications, and their willingness to certify to the purchaser, upon request, that the material thus supplied is guaranteed to comply with the requirements and tests of the specifications.

From time to time the State and other public purchasing agents have sought the assistance of the United States Department of Commerce in the formulation of standards, specifications, and methods of tests for their purchases. Every effort is, therefore, being exerted to make the certification plan as effective as possible for "public purchasers", that is, purchasers for the Federal, State, county, and municipal governments who are spending the money collected from the public in the form of taxes.

Below are indicated 243 of the Federal specifications to which the certification plan has been applied. There have been compiled by the National Bureau of Standards 243 lists of such firms as have expressed to the Bureau their willingness, when requested to do so, to certify to purchasers that material supplied on contracts based on the designated 243 Federal specifications complies with the requirements and tests of these specifications, and is so guaranteed by them. Additions and corrections to these lists are being made from time to time.

These lists are not published; their distribution is limited to governmental and institutional purchasers, Federal, State, county, and municipal. They are sent to others only upon specific requestor to officers of interested associations and societies for comment and criticism.

The groups of commodities covered by the specifications together with numerical reference to the individual specifications, are as follows:

Organized for the purpose of securing economy in the procurement of material used by the Government, the Federal Specifications Board makes a strenuous effort to adopt such specifications as will cover commercial materials and supplies. Before the specifications are promulgated as official Federal specifications for the mandatory use of the departments and establishments of the Government, comments and criticisms from the manufacturers and interested engineering and technical societies are given careful consideration.

Among the duties assigned to the Board are not only the compilation and adoption of standard specifications for materials and services, but also the bringing of the Government specifications into harmony with the best commercial practice whenever conditions permit, bearing in mind the broadening of the field of supply.

SERVICE TO GOVERNMENT PURCHASING AGENCIES

Some idea of the value attached to the lists of "willing-to-certify" manufacturers by such officers of the Federal Government as are directly concerned with the Government departments and establishments as consumers (not as law-makers) can be gained from the fact that the purchasing agencies of all of the Government departments and establishments, wherever their headquarters may be located, are making effective use of the "willing-to-certify" lists of manufacturers. As showing the attitude of these officers, reference may well be had to statements made by the Paymaster General of the Navy concerning the use of these lists, and the action taken by officers of the War Department in distributing the lists, as follows:

Navy Department

"It is believed that the data contained in a list of 'willing-to-certify' manufacturers would be of great value in building up a mailing list of primary sources of supply who are known to be familiar with the requirements of certain well-known specifications and willing to comply with them.

"The Navy will be glad to take steps to list any firm which has certified its willingness to guarantee that its product will meet a specification of the Federal Specifications Board or a Navy specification, and invite bids from such a firm when in the market. Proposal blanks issued by the Navy contain either the specification printed in full or a reference thereto; and an unqualified bid is assumed to be in strict accordance with the specification and subject to the tests and inspection outlined therein. In this connection, it will be appreciated if lists might be furnished showing names and addresses of firms which have certified their willingness to guarantee that the technical requirements of their product meet the specifications of the Federal Specifications Board.

"It is believed that manufacturers will be quick to recognize the potential advertising value of a statement in their sales literature and advertising to the effect that their material is guaranteed to conform to certain well-known specifications."

War Department

"In time of war it is very desirable that the Government be able to obtain the articles which it requires in quantity. A more general acceptance of the carefully prepared Federal Specifications by general purchasing officers of industry will do much to accomplish this end. Education along these lines is necessary.

"To spread the information concerning the specifications and the certification plan, I believe we could do much to further the scheme. The country has been divided into fourteen procurement districts in connection with industrial war planning. All together the Army has established fifty district procurement offices. In each of these districts the regular Army representative is in close touch with many reserve officers who would be mobilized in time of war for procurement duty. In time of peace these men are engaged in widely varying businesses, many of whom are purchasing agencies.

"It is proposed, therefore, to send a letter to the Chiefs of all Supply Branches directing the attention of the regular Army executives of the procurement districts to the 'certification plan' and the 'sources of supply of commodities covered by Federal specifications', and to the belief that a more general acceptance of the Federal specifications by industry, particularly by manufacturers and large users, will do much to facilitate the procurement of suitable articles in time of war. The Federal specifications which are the subject of these studies have received the approval of the War Department after the most careful consideration. They are now mandatory upon the Army. Hence, the more generally they are accepted by industry the easier will be the task of buying under them in peace and in time of war."

The details involved in compiling the lists of manufacturers willing to certify to compliance with Federal specifications have been worked out in full accord with ideas expressed by the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, and the lists are being distributed to all Federal Government departments and establishments at the suggestion of the Chief Coordinator.

Chief Coordinator

In a communication to the heads of all Federal departments and establishments calling attention to the application of the certification plan and the use by manufacturers of labels guaranteeing that the commodities labeled comply with certain Federal specifications, the Chief Coordinator states:

"The more generally the certification and labeling plans are adopted by industry, the wider will be the geographical distribution of commodities complying with Federal specifications and the greater will be the likelihood of finding Federal specification materials in out-of-the-way places and in small quantities.

"As a result, the general authorization for waiver of requirements of Federal specifications will have to be invoked by Government purchasers to a much less extent than at present, and Government activities will aid the certification and labeling plans by insisting, whenever practicable, upon adherence to the requirements of the Federal specifications.

"As a further result, when the general authorization for waiver of tests prescribed in Federal specifications is justified by the conditions of purchase, the inspecting officer can be assured to a much greater degree than at present as to the quality of material, when such material is furnished under the certification and labeling plans.

"The Federal Purchasing Board has approved in principle, the movement to promote the use of the certification and labeling plans.

"It should be borne in mind that the fact that a commodity is included in the certification and labeling plans does not entitle it to any preference over a commodity not included in such plans when the price quoted for the latter is lower, and when the bidder has made no exceptions to the Federal specifications applicable in his proposal."

Below are shown groups of commodities and numerical designations of specifications for which additional listings have been requested by the manufacturers indicated.

The following lists are continuously subject to revision and enlargement. From time to time additions are being made to both the number of lists of "willing-to-certify" manufacturers and the number of manufacturers on the individual lists.
