STATUS OF MUNICIPAL BUILDING CODES

(Compiled by the Division of Building and Housing, Bureau of Standards)

Purpose of Publication

Previous surveys, made primarily for the information of the Building Code Committee of the Department of Commerce in its work of preparing recommended building code requirements, have proved of interest to municipal officials, material producing organizations, and others concerned with the subject. It has been found that through interchange of information among municipalities indicated as revising their codes, much of common interest is brought to light. This circular has also proved useful to the growing body of persons who wish to familiarize themselves with methods, progress, and experience in building code revision.

Source of Information

The information presented in the following list of municipalities is based on answers to questionnaires sent out during January and February, 1933, to building inspectors, city clerks, and others from whom it was thought authentic information could be obtained. In some cases where replies were not received information obtained in other ways but believed to be correct has been inserted.

Questionnaires were sent to municipalities having a population of 2,500 or over. The tabulation, however, is based upon those having a population of 5,000 or over. Replies to the other questionnaires are held in the files for reference. A summary of such replies shows that in addition to municipalities shown in the tabulation there are 687 others that have building codes. These codes range all the way from little more than fire limit ordinances to complete requirements.

Dates of Codes

Those to whom the questionnaires were sent were asked to give the year when the code now in use was adopted or revised throughout. Minor revisions and amendments take place frequently in codes and, with few exceptions, have not been considered to change the date of the code itself for the purpose of this tabulation.

A summary of the replies, upon which this tabulation is based, shows that 108 cities have building codes 20 years old or over; 137 have building codes 15 to 20 years old; 216 have building codes from 10 to 15 years old; 420 have building codes from 5 to 10 years old; and 296 have building codes less than 5 years old. In addition 453 cities report that they have no building code. However, the fact that a given municipality is reported to have no code does not necessarily mean that building is unrestricted. In a number of locations there are state laws which apply.

Revision of Codes

The question in this case was whether work was actively under way on a fairly complete revision.

In order to establish what subjects were requiring most attention in revision work, a question was asked as to the principal changes made in revision now going on or recently completed. The most practicable method of indicating these subjects appeared to be to give them an identifying number in the tabulation and then explain the numbering elsewhere. Accordingly each major subject has been assigned a particular number and a key to this system will be found on the last page. In 148 cases such revision was indicated as in process while ten others reported the drafting of a new code.

Use of Department of Commerce Recommendations

The Building Code Committee of the Department of Commerce and its Subcommittee on Plumbing have issued recommendations in the form of seven reports. These have been made available to local committees and others interested in safe and economical requirements and the survey shows that they have been used in 348 municipalities in building code work.

Reports on other subjects are substantially complete and revision of older reports is being systematically pursued. It is hoped in this way that the results of research and of experience may be available to all those who wish to apply them. Inquiries concerning the recommendations mentioned should be addressed to the Secretary, Department of Commerce Building Code Committee, Bureau of Standards, Washington, D.C.
