SUPPLEMENT NO. 1 TO CIRCULAR NO. 24: PUBLICATIONS OF THE BUREAU OF STANDARDS

[Issued April 15, 1919]

This supplement is designed to keep reasonably current the more important facts concerning the Bureau's publications. It is planned that the list of publications (Circular 24) will be revised biennially, and a supplement containing the character of information listed herein will be issued quarterly.

The initial letters preceding the numbers indicate the special series, i. e., S for Scientific Papers, T for Technologic Papers, C for Circulars, M for Miscellaneous Publications.

PUBLICATIONS NOT AVAILABLE

The publications listed below are not available for distribution by the Bureau of Standards, nor for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, but they may be consulted at any of the designated Government libraries listed in this supplement.

GENERAL INFORMATION

The large number of requests for Bureau of Standards publications precludes the sending of personal replies in each case. The request is returned with a form letter to notify the writer that the publications requested will be forwarded, if available.

1. Free distribution.—Free distribution is limited to one copy of any publication dealing with an individual's specialty. Additional copies may be purchased, (see paragraph 4.) This does not mean that any person will be furnished with copies of all papers on a general subject such as electricity, but only those dealing with his special branch of such general subject as, for example, the measurement of electrical capacity. This applies to all general subjects. Orders should be sent in accordance with paragraph 3.

2. Designations of publications.—Four series are issued, under distinctive titles, as follows: Scientific Papers, Technologic Papers, Circulars, and Miscellaneous Publications, and the issues in each series are numbered consecutively. The Scientific Papers were originally entitled "Reprints," but this title should not now be used. Bulletins (comprising 6 to 8 numbers of the Scientific Papers bound under one cover) are to be obtained by purchase only, (see paragraph 4.)

3. Ordering and delivery of publications.—Order by group name and number, in addition to title, thus assisting in the prompt filling of your order. Deliveries require from 1 to 2 weeks time, as stocks are maintained by the Superintendent of Documents and forwarded only by him, as provided by law, on orders drawn by the various Government offices.

4. Ordering of sales copies.—Orders for the purchase of any Government publication should be addressed direct to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., and not to the office issuing same. Orders should be accompanied by cash or money order remittance.

5. Mailing list.—A mailing list covering announcement of issues of new publications, but not providing for forwarding of copies, is maintained by this Bureau.
