

Special Notice

Beginning with the January 1966 issue, Radio Science will be published by the Environmental Science Services Administration (ESSA). It will continue to be cosponsored by the U.S. National Committee of the International Scientific Radio Union.

The full title of the journal will be changed from NBS Journal of Research, Section D (Radio Science), to simply Radio Science, and a new series of volumes will begin. This change is particularly appropriate in view of the recent transfer of the Central Radio Propagation Laboratory from the National Bureau of Standards to the Environmental Science Services Administration, both of the Department of Commerce. However, the scope, coverage, format, and editorship of the journal will remain the same. Present subscribers will continue to receive the journal.

The Editor would like to take this occasion to express his appreciation to the National Bureau of Standards staff in Washington for their past efforts in preparing the journal for the printer.
