HISTORY OF PROJECT

25. On November 27, 1942 the Office of Price Administration requested the cooperation of the National Bureau of Standards looking to the establishment of an emergency standard for boys' pajamas.
26. A tentative draft was developed and copies sent to representative manufacturers, distributors, and consumers who offered constructive suggestions and recommended that it be circulated for written acceptance. Upon receipt of official acceptances of the adjusted draft estimated to represent a satisfactory majority, it was announced on February 10, 1943 that the standard designated as CS(E)106-43 was to become effective for new production from April 10, 1943.
27. On July 18, 1944 the standing committee recommended that size measurements for boys' junior pajamas be added to the standard and that the word "emergency" be deleted. Upon general acceptance by the trade, the recommended revision was promulgated by the United States Department of Commerce as Commercial Standard CS106-44. An announcement was issued on October 10, 1944 that the revised standard would become effective for new production from December 9, 1944.

TO THE ACCEPTOR

The following statements answer the usual questions arising in connection with the acceptance and its significance:

1. Enforcement.—Commercial standards are commodity specifications voluntarily established by mutual consent of those concerned. They present a common basis of understanding between the producer, distributor, and consumer and should not be confused with any plan of governmental regulation or control. The United States Department of Commerce has no regulatory power in the enforcement of their provisions, but since they represent the will of the interested groups as a whole, their provisions through usage soon become established as trade customs, and are made effective through incorporation into sales contracts by means of labels, invoices and the like.

2. The acceptor's responsibility.—The purpose of commercial standards is to establish for specific commodities, nationally recognized grades or consumer criteria and the benefits therefrom will be measurable in direct proportion to their general recognition and actual use. Instances will occur when in may be necessary to deviate from the standard and the signing of an acceptance does not preclude such departures; however, such signature indicates an intention to follow the commercial standard where practicable, in the production, distribution, or consumption of the article in question.

3. The Department's responsibility.—The major function performed by the Department of Commerce in the voluntary establishment of commercial standards on a Nation-wide basis is fourfold: first, to act as an unbiased coordinator to bring all interested parties together for the mutually satisfactory adjustment of trade standards; second, to supply such assistance and advice as past experience with similar programs may suggest; third, to canvass and record the extent of acceptance and adherence to the standard on the part of producers, distributors, and users; and fourth, after acceptance, to publish and promulgate the standard for the information and guidance of buyers and sellers of the commodity.

4. Announcement and promulgation.—When the standard has been endorsed by a satisfactory majority of production or consumption in the absence of active, valid opposition, the success of the project is announced. If, however, in the opinion of the standing committee or the Department of Commerce, the support of any standard is inadequate; the right is reserved to withhold promulgation and publication.
The organizations listed below have individually accepted this standard for use as far as practicable in the production, distribution, testing, or use of boys’ pajamas (made from woven fabrics). In accepting the standard they reserved the right to depart therefrom as they individually deem advisable. It is expected that articles which actually comply with the requirements of this standard in all respects will be regularly identified or labeled as conforming thereto, and that purchasers will require such specific evidence of conformity.
