The National Institute of Standards and Technology was established in 1988 by Congress to “assist industry in the development of technology . . . needed to improve product quality, to modernize manufacturing processes, to ensure product reliability . . . and to facilitate rapid commercialization . . . of products based on new scientific discoveries.”

NIST, originally founded as the National Bureau of Standards in 1901, works to strengthen U.S. industry’s competitiveness; advance science and engineering; and improve public health, safety, and the environment. One of the agency’s basic functions is to develop, maintain, and retain custody of the national standards of measurement, and provide the means and methods for comparing standards used in science, engineering, manufacturing, commerce, industry, and education with the standards adopted or recognized by the Federal Government.

As an agency of the U.S. Commerce Department’s Technology Administration, NIST conducts basic and applied research in the physical sciences and engineering, and develops measurement techniques, test methods, standards, and related services. The Institute does generic and precompetitive work on new and advanced technologies. NIST’s research facilities are located at Gaithersburg, MD 20899, and at Boulder, CO 80303. Major technical operating units and their principal activities are listed below. For more information contact the Public Inquiries Desk, 301-975-3058.

Foreword

The Office of Law Enforcement Standards (OLES) of the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) furnishes technical support to the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) program to strengthen law enforcement and criminal justice in the United States. OLES's mission, simply stated, is to apply science and technology to the needs of the criminal justice community, including law enforcement, corrections, forensic science, and the fire service.

While the primary focus is on the development of minimum performance standards, which are promulgated by the sponsoring agency as voluntary national standards, the Office also undertakes studies leading to technical reports and user guidelines. OLES also provides technical support to the National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center (NLECTC) which is responsible for responding to information requests from criminal justice agencies and operating a highly successful equipment testing program.

This document is a report developed by OLES under the sponsorship of NIJ as part of the Law Enforcement and Corrections Standards and Testing Program, which is described on the inside front cover of this report. Additional reports as well as other documents are being issued under the OLES program in the areas of protective equipment, communications systems, security systems, weapons, emergency equipment, investigative aids, vehicles, clothing, and analytical techniques and standard reference materials used by the forensic science community.

Technical comments and suggestions concerning this report are invited from all interested parties. They may be addressed to the Office of Law Enforcement Standards, National Institute of Standards and Technology, Bldg. 225, Rm. A323, Gaithersburg, MD 20899-0001.

Kathleen M. Higgins, Director
Office of Law Enforcement Standards

The technical effort to develop this report was conducted under Interagency Agreement 94-IJ-R-004, Project No. NIJ95-005.

Acknowledgments

This directory was prepared by the staff of the Office of Law Enforcement Standards (OLES) of the National Institute of Standards and Technology under the direction of Kathleen M. Higgins, Director of OLES. Its preparation was sponsored by the National Institute of Justice, David G. Boyd, Director, Office of Science and Technology.

ABOUT THE LAW ENFORCEMENT AND CORRECTIONS STANDARDS AND TESTING PROGRAM

The Law Enforcement and Corrections Standards and Testing Program is sponsored by the Office of Science and Technology of the National Institute of Justice (NIJ), U.S. Department of Justice. The program responds to the mandate of the Justice System Improvement Act of 1979, which created NIJ and directed it to encourage research and development to improve the criminal justice system and to disseminate the results to Federal, State, and local agencies.

The Law Enforcement and Corrections Standards and Testing Program is an applied research effort that determines the technological needs of justice system agencies, sets minimum performance standards for specific devices, tests commercially available equipment against those standards, and disseminates the standards and the test results to criminal justice agencies nationwide and internationally.

The program operates through:

The Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Advisory Council (LECTAC) consisting of nationally recognized criminal justice practitioners from Federal, State, and local agencies, which assesses technological needs and sets priorities for research programs and items to be evaluated and tested.

The Office of Law Enforcement Standards (OLES) at the National Institute of Standards and Technology, which develops voluntary national performance standards for compliance testing to ensure that individual items of equipment are suitable for use by criminal justice agencies. The standards are based upon laboratory testing and evaluation of representative samples of each item of equipment to determine the key attributes, develop test methods, and establish minimum performance requirements for each essential attribute. In addition to the highly technical standards, OLES also produces technical reports and user guidelines that explain in nontechnical terms the capabilities of available equipment.

The National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center (NLECTC), operated by a grantee, which supervises a national compliance testing program conducted by independent agencies. The standards developed by OLES serve as performance benchmarks against which commercial equipment is measured. The facilities, personnel, and testing capabilities of the independent laboratories are evaluated by OLES prior to testing each item of equipment, and OLES helps the Technology Center staff review and analyze data. Test results are published in Consumer Product Reports designed to help justice system procurement officials make informed purchasing decisions.

Publications issued by the National Institute of Justice, including those of the Law Enforcement and Corrections Standards and Testing Program, are available from the National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS), which serves as a central information and reference source for the Nation's criminal justice community. For further information, or to register with NCJRS, write to the National Institute of Justice, National Criminal Justice Reference Service, Washington, DC 20531.

The National Institute of Justice is a component of the Office of Justice Programs, which also includes the Bureau of Justice Assistance, Bureau of Justice Statistics, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, and the Office for Victims of Crime.

Directory of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice Associations and Research Centers

The directory lists national, nonprofit professional and volunteer social action associations and research centers which are active in the field of law enforcement and criminal justice. The international and foreign organizations which are listed either have a large number of American members, have a U.S. chapter, or are doing work which is applicable to the United States. The local organizations which are listed either cover several States or are of national interest. The organizations are listed alphabetically. The format of an entry is: title of organization; mailing address; officer; telephone number; fax number; year founded; number of members; number of staff; description of purpose and activities; affiliations; publications; meetings. A subject index is included.

Key words: associations; criminal justice; directory; law enforcement; research centers.

Introduction

This is a directory of organizations that are active in one or more areas of the criminal justice system, including law enforcement, courts, corrections and rehabilitation. The directory lists national organizations primarily, but also includes regional organizations and local organizations of special interest as well as international organizations which have a significant number of American members, a U.S. chapter or subcommittee, or are doing work applicable to law enforcement in this country.

The types of national law enforcement and criminal justice organizations listed in this directory are limited by the criterion that they be nonprofit. Included in this category are professional and volunteer social action associations, research centers (usually connected with a university), and government agencies. Strictly social or fraternal organizations are not listed.

The information about each organization in this directory forms a separate entry. Each entry contains the following information: (1) the full title of the organization and its acronym, where applicable; (2) the mailing address; (3) a person to contact within the organization; usually an incumbent officer; (4) the telephone and fax number at which a contact person can be reached; (5) the year when the organization was founded; (6) the number of members; (7) the number of staff, where applicable; (8) a brief description of the organization; (9) affiliations, if any; (10) publications, if any; and (11) the date and place of the next meeting or convention, or when they generally occur.

The first edition of this directory was developed primarily by scanning the Encyclopedia of Associations, the Research Centers Directory, and other general directories, and extracting from them the data on organizations relating to law enforcement and criminal justice. Whenever personal investigation revealed organizations which were not included in the primary source material, they were included in this directory.

Once the information was obtained from the general directories it was verified by telephone or by mail.

The organizations are listed alphabetically. A subject index, which is located at the back of the directory, is cross-referenced and is based solely on information given in the descriptions of activities.

The first edition of this directory was prepared by B. J. Latka of the Office of Law Enforcement Standards (OLES), (formerly the Law Enforcement Standards Laboratory (LESL)), and was issued in June 1973 as NBS Technical Note 752. The second edition was issued in March 1978 as NBS Special Publication 480-20. The third edition was issued in April 1986 as NBS Special Publication 480-20. This thoroughly revised and updated fourth edition is the result of the efforts of S. Lyles, M. Leach, and R. Joel of OLES.

The American Institute for Biosocial Research's Life Sciences Division, studies the interrelationship between environmental and physiological factors and antisocial behavior and mental illness. The Institute maintains a reference library containing in excess of 12,000 volumes and an extensive literature base. Staff of the Institute have published numerous books and peer review publications on the Institute's findings and reviews. Ongoing studies involve biological markers associated with violent antisocial behavior in cooperation with university centers and private foundations. For 17 years, the Institute has trained over 50,000 individuals working in the criminal justice system through its course, "Body Chemistry and Behavior." This course has been offered in over 14 countries. The Institute's nonprofit affiliate publishes the International Journal of Biosocial and Medical Research, now in its 15th year of publication. The Institute's staff have served as experts in criminal justice and civil hearings, in addition to providing technical assistance to forensic specialists. Staff are available as consultants, program developers, or workshop facilitators and conference lecturers.

The Coalition to Stop Gun Violence (CSGV) was founded in 1974 to fight the epidemic of gun violence in our country. CSGV believes that easy access to, and abundance of, firearms in this country play a major role in this national tragedy. In order to combat this public health crisis, we support a ban on most handguns and assault weapons. CSGV also supports intermediate legislative initiatives, such as limiting the availability of gun dealers' licenses, increasing the handgun and ammunition taxes to offset health care costs, strict liability for gun manufacturers and dealers, and a national one handgun a month law. CSGV also engages in public education campaigns as well as maintaining an active legal program.

In order to promote training, research and regional cooperation, the United Nations has established a network of interregional and regional institutes. The European Institute for Crime Prevention and Control, affiliated with the United Nations (HEUNI) is the regional European link in the network of institutes. The primary objective of HEUNI is to promote the international exchange of information on crime prevention and control among European countries. The frame of reference is given by the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme, as well as the specific needs of the countries in the region. HEUNI is increasingly focusing on the needs of the countries in transition in Central and Eastern Europe. HEUNI seeks to achieve its objective in a variety of ways. The most important of these are: the organization of European seminars and expert group meetings on crime and criminal justice issues of relevance to the European countries, the conducting of research, and the collection and dissemination of information on matters falling within its competence. HEUNI also seeks to serve as a clearinghouse in identifying, for interested governments, institutions and individual experts, sources of information on recent developments in crime, criminal justice and criminal policy throughout Europe.

The objective of Human Issues, Inc., is to educate the public about the devastating aftereffects of incest, to help prevent such abuse, to support victims in identifying the root of their afflictions and to alleviate their pain. We organize and run regularly support groups for adults for adult survivors. We also plan to offer the justice and penal system adjunct programs that address incest as one of the roots of criminal behavior. Human Issues will work well with existing rehabilitation programs, where appropriate, and also design new ones to focus on self-empowerment for institutionalized survivors. Support group meetings (once a week), as well as open membership meetings (every 6 weeks) and board meetings are held in meeting rooms of Trinity Church, 74 Trinity Place, Manhattan. The organization received tax-exempt status in December, 1993.

Founded: 1994

The International Centre for the Prevention of Crime (ICPC) was established in 1994 to harness the world's crime prevention know-how to the reduction of crime. Its main relevance to government agencies, police services and cities in the U.S.A. is its access to promising crime prevention practices and experienced practitioners from across the world as well as assistance in adapting those practices to local conditions. It will make available occasional publications on harnessing promising crime prevention internationally. Its priority areas are: fostering preventive solutions for city crime problems (before and after trouble starts); preventing the cycle of violence, particularly against women, children, and vulnerable groups; and encouraging police and justice services that support crime prevention and safety for persons.

Lacking Islamic knowledge and right information, many Muslim inmates become targets of misunderstanding. Most jails and correctional centers do not have an Imam (Muslim Chaplain.) Accurate and helpful Islamic literature in prison systems is rare. Inaccurate information leads to many misunderstandings and misconceptions. The Islamic Correctional Reunion Association (ICRA) is making a sincere effort to provide reliable assistance to prisoners.

No one is forced to be a Muslim. Moreover, the Holy Qur'an cautions against it. However, certain self-disciplinary constraints must be exercised by all Muslims for peaceful living. ICRA services open ways for self-training toward peaceful living for those who intend to follow the Islamic way of life.

The vision of Justice Fellowship is to see a movement of God's people in every state and community working to bring biblical truth and justice to bear on the American criminal justice system. The mission is to exhort, equip and assist the church in its ministry of promoting biblical standards of justice in the American criminal justice system. The purpose of Justice Fellowship is to research, draft and communicate model Restorative Justice Principles to encourage public policies that are responsive to the victim, the offender, the community and government. The principles of Restorative Justice are: 1) Crime results in injuries to victims, communities and offenders; therefore, the criminal justice process must repair those injuries; 2) Not only government, but victims, offenders, and the communities should be actively involved in the criminal justice process at the earliest point and to the maximum extent possible; and 3) In promoting justice, the government is responsible for preserving order, and the community is responsible for establishing peace.

To restore balance to the criminal justice system, Justice Fellowship will work for reforms based on these principles. Our strategic objectives will be: VICTIMS' RIGHTS: To grant victims a formal role in the criminal justice process, including the right to participate in criminal justice cases and the right to restitution and reconciliation; INTERMEDIATE PUNISHMENTS: To sentence nonviolent offenders to community service, restitution, and other intermediate sanctions that hold offenders accountable and protect the public, and PRISON WORK PROGRAMS: To emphasize the need for a healthy, viable work program in every prison to the end that as many prisoners as possible be gainfully employed.

Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund (MALDEF) is a national nonprofit organization whose mission is to protect and promote the civil rights of the over 25 million Latinos living in the United States. It is particularly dedicated to securing such rights in education, employment, immigration, political access, and language. The organization achieves its objectives through litigation, advocacy, community education, collaboration with other groups and individuals, and the awarding of law school scholarships to Latinos. Throughout the years, MALDEF has been at the forefront of civil rights litigation, setting precedent in many cases and establishing new systems to elect officials, hire and promote employees and educate children. MALDEF has also worked extensively on the issues of redistricting and census adjustment. Through its leadership programs, MALDEF has empowered and trained Latinos to join boards of directors and commissions in their communities and parents to become advocates for the children's education.

Headquartered in Los Angeles, MALDEF has regional offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, and Washington, DC, with a satellite office in Sacramento, and program offices in Fresno and Santa Ana, California, Detroit, Michigan, and El Paso, Texas.

Founded: 1972

The National Black Police Association (NBPA) is a nationwide organization of Black police associations dedicated to the promotion of justice, fairness, and effectiveness in law enforcement. The NBPA has over 100 member associations, representing more than 35,000 individual members. The principal concerns of the NBPA center upon law enforcement issues and the effect of those issues upon the total community; it serves as an advocate for minority police officers; and establishes a national network for the training and education of all police officers and others interested in law enforcement issues. Membership is open to active or retired members of governmental police agencies and individuals philosophically compatible with the aims of the NBPA. The NBPA, in conjunction with the National Organization of Black Law Enforcement Executives, has developed a strategy for Community-Oriented Policing—a comprehensive strategy of community policing. The organization also offers scholarship awards for high school students interested in pursuing a career in Criminal Justice.

Suite 901
Bethesda, MD 20814

Executive Director: James Synk

Phone: (301) 907-3202

Fax: (301) 907-7897

Founded: 1948

The National Burglar & Fire Alarm Association (NBFAA) represents companies that sell, service, install and monitor security and fire alarm systems. Founded in 1948, it is the oldest and largest electronic security trade association in the nation. Nearly 4000 member companies, employing more than 30,000 employees, make up NBFAA's membership. While NBFAA represents companies of all sizes, more than 80 percent of its members employ fewer than 10 people.

NBFAA works to educate the public about crime prevention and safety through a comprehensive communications program that includes: a consumer brochure—Safe & Sound: Your Guide to Home Security, a false alarm prevention brochure for security system users, a series of nationally-syndicated news articles, a video public service announcement and a national speakers bureau program.

To protect consumers, NBFAA strongly advocates the development and enforcement of effective state licensing laws that require pre-employment criminal background checks, employee fingerprinting, employee photo IDs, among other measures.

Through its nationally-acclaimed training school, NBFAA keeps the industry abreast of the latest developments in security technology and helps security professionals meet licensing requirements and retain their certification status. Nearly 15,000 security professionals and public safety officials have demonstrated their commitment to quality, professionalism and continuing education with NBFAA's training school.

Solidifying a standard of training excellence, NBFAA addresses critical security issues with its network of chartered state associations, volunteer-led committees and participation with affiliate organizations. Partners in public safety include: International Association of Chiefs of Police, International Association of Fire Chiefs, and National Electrical Manufacturers Association.

The National Center for Juvenile Justice (NCJJ) is a private, non-profit research organization and the research division of the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges. The Center's mission is focused on aiding the prevention of juvenile delinquency, child abuse, and child neglect. In striving to accomplish its mission, the Center conducts systems, applied, and legal research on a daily basis relating to a broad range of juvenile justice topics. The Center has developed and maintained the National Juvenile Court Data Archive—the cornerstone of the systems research function. The Archive is a national repository of more than fifteen million computerized juvenile court case records that enables the most comprehensive research analyses on juvenile delinquency trends available anywhere. Within the applied research function, information and technical assistance services are provided to juvenile justice professionals around the country on topics ranging from model programs, to facilities design, to program planning and evaluations, to development of management information systems. The Center's Automated Juvenile Law Archive—a database comprised of the juvenile codes of the fifty states and the District of Columbia—is a unique resource for most of the legal research conducted by the Center of the comparative statutory nature. This resource allows comparative legislative studies to be conducted in a timely and highly economic manner.

Founded as the National Police Constables Association (NPCA) in 1976 at Fair Lawn, New Jersey, the name was changed in 1981, at a national reorganization meeting at Harrah's Hotel-Casino, Atlantic City, NJ, to the National Constables Association (NCA).

The position of constable is the heritage of all law enforcement in America. Constables implemented the Common Laws which governed the original 13 Colonies. The word COP comes from Constables On Patrol.

Constables work for the Judicial and Executive branches of the government. They are a part of the local delivery of justice system. Constitutionally and historically, all law enforcement agents receive their duties and responsibilities from those of the constable.

Constables are a two-fold agent of the justice system. For the Judiciary, they carry legal papers such as warrants, writs, subpoenas and property eviction notices for the minor courts, issue citations, perform traffic duty, speed checks, pick up suspended driver licenses and a multitude of other duties and responsibilities. For the Executive branch of government (county government), they serve delinquent tax notices, serve zoning and health violations, and security for private industry.

Constables are statuted by the state Legislature. They represent the most cost-effective, revenue-producing agency of law enforcement. Constables provide their own insurances, emergency vehicle, equipment and supplies. Uniforms are optional and constables work on either a fee and mileage basis or on a salary.

The National Institute of Justice (NIJ), funds grants and contracts as authorized by the Justice Assistance Act of 1984 (PL 98-473). The National Institute programs are organized into three major categories: (1) Crime control research and evaluation; (2) Science & Technology Research Program; and (3) communications and research utilization. Priorities and programs are outlined in the NIJ Research Plan, published annually. Specific project solicitations are announced in the Federal Register or the Commerce Business Daily. Current priorities of the Institute are: Reducing violent crime, drug related crime, and victimization; developing crime prevention strategies; improving the effectiveness of the criminal justice system, and developing new technology to effect law enforcement and criminal justice system improvements. A continuing program in technology assessment provides standards and test reports on law enforcement equipment. The Institute also operates an international clearinghouse of information on criminal justice, the National Criminal Justice Reference Service (NCJRS). Information on the National Institute programs is available from NCJRS, as are copies of research reports and summaries. Write to NIJ/NCJRS, Box 6000, Rockville, Maryland 20850. Institute reports are also published through the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office.

Founded in 1964 by the American Bar Association (ABA) Conference of State Trial Judges, The National Judicial College (NJC) is the nation's premier residential institution training judges and other decision-makers. The College is governed by a Board of Trustees selected by the ABA Board of Governors from nominees by the Judicial Administration Division of the ABA and others. NJC offers 55 resident sessions of 2.5 days to 3 weeks duration to approximately 1500 judges each year. Additionally, NJC conducts regional and state extension programs across the nation and offers assistance to state judicial education offices. Special and innovative programs are presented on significant issues as victims' rights, equal justice in the courts, diversity issues, and scientific evidence. The faculty is significantly made up of volunteer judges, lawyers, and law professors. Other disciplines join this faculty at specific courses. The College maintains a Law Library of some 60,000 volumes and CD ROM on law and judicial administration.

The mission of the National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center/Northeast Region is to facilitate the identification, development, manufacture, and adoption of new products and technologies specifically designed for law enforcement, corrections, and other criminal justice applications. The Northeast Region is a partnership between the National Institute of Justice and Rome Laboratory. Rome Laboratory is the Air Force Super Laboratory for Command, Control, Communications, Computers and Intelligence (C4I) Research and Development. Many of the Technologies developed at Rome Laboratory have applications in law enforcement and corrections. The Northeast Regional Center will support C4I applications including surveillance, intelligence, communications, command & control, signal processing including image processing and speech processing, computer science electromagnetics, photonics, and reliability. The initial technology emphasis is on concealed weapons detection. The area of operational responsibility here at the Northeast Regional Center is comprised of 16 states in the Northeast.

In late 1994, the Department of Justice and the Department of Defense entered into an Interagency Agreement (IAA) between the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) and the Naval Command, Control and Ocean Surveillance Center In-Service Engineering, East Coast Division (NISE East). Its purpose is to assist in the development and transfer of technologies to law enforcement and corrections agencies. This IAA tasked NISE East with establishing the National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center, Southeast Region (NLECTC-SE). The NLECTC-SE Region commenced operations on 30 May 1995 and specializes in Law Enforcement and Corrections technology.

The NLECTC-SE Region will provide law enforcement and correctional organizations with the following: A Justice Technology Information Network (JUSTNET); a Corrections Remote Bulletin Board System (RBBS); Test and evaluation of law enforcement and corrections equipment/systems; a reference library of available current dual use technologies for applications; a gateway for access to other national research laboratories and databases; and a center for technology assessment.

Functioning as a member and Regional Hub for the JUSTNET, the NLECTC-SE Region will disseminate information to law enforcement and corrections agencies in the field. Agencies will have access to databases on current dual use technology, equipment, vendors, and associated costs to assist in equipping their personnel and formulate their budgets.

As federal regulations permit, other functions such as: equipment procurement, GSA consolidated buys, and life cycle support of systems and a temporary loan capability will be developed.

The RBBS will provide a private, controlled access media to support corrections information exchange and World Wide Web access to JUSTNET on-line information. These forms of on-line information will provide the capability of uploading/downloading the following types of information: text files, graphics information (to include scanned images). Users can also chat, teleconference, and e-mail across the U.S.

This Center, which is a joint program of the National Institute of Justice and the nonprofit, federally funded Aerospace Corporation, is involved in evaluating numerous enhancement technologies for law enforcement and corrections officers. The major application areas for these technologies include: Patrol operations, investigations, criminalistics and forensics, information systems, prisoner custody and administrative support functions such as training. We hope to attain for the law enforcement and corrections fields:

- Assessments of agency technology and research needs
- Identification and evaluation of available technologies for law enforcement and corrections usage
- Facilitation of partnerships within the public and private sectors to develop new technologies
- Demonstrations of these technologies
- Assistance in the transition of technology to operational deployment
- Technical support in aerospace-related fields

Technical expertise and resources are available through the linkage with The Aerospace Corporation which employs over 2000 highly skilled engineers and scientists. These scientists and engineers have been operating and managing the world's leading military space program for over 35 years. These resources will now be available to law enforcement and corrections agencies through the Center.

SECTION OF CRIMINAL JUSTICE

American Bar Association
1800 M St. NW.
Washington, DC 20036

Director: Thomas C. Smith

Phone: (202) 331-2260

Founded: 1920

Staff: 11

Members: 10,000

The Section of Criminal Justice is a professional membership organization for criminal law practitioners, and for lawyers who handle an occasional criminal case or become involved in any aspect of white collar crime or other criminal representation. Additionally, the Criminal Justice Section is the American Bar Association's primary expert and leader in the development of policy positions pertaining to criminal law and criminal justice system operations. Because of its systemwide perspective, the Section's membership includes defense lawyers, prosecutors, trial and appellate judges, legislators, law professors, law enforcement and corrections personnel, nonlawyer "Criminal Justice Associates" in some of these and allied criminal justice professions, and law students. The Section sponsors continuing legal education programs on trial tactics and techniques, emerging problem areas in criminal defense and prosecution, and substantive developments in the law. Practice-oriented and policy publications are published periodically. Current efforts in the policy development arena include work toward the development of a model state RICO statute (Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations), a study of eligibility and recoupment practices in the provision of indigent defense services, the development of standards providing guidance in the controversial area of access by law enforcement agencies to third-party held records, and research on the cost impact of the death penalty on the justice system. The Section monitors State legislative developments and frequently testifies on behalf of the American Bar Association before the U.S. Congress on subjects ranging from voir dire by counsel to preventive detention and sentencing. Beyond these subjects, the Section's current volunteer committee structure addresses subjects including competency, environmental criminal law, prison and jail problems, grand jury reform, drunk driving, prosecutorial discretion, rules of criminal procedure and evidence, and white collar crime. The Criminal Justice Section currently sponsors a Juvenile Justice Standards Implementation Project and a Victim Witness Assistance Project which are also active agents in the spheres of policymaking, publications, and education.

Stop Prisoner Rape, Inc. (SPR), formerly People Organized to Stop Rape of Imprisoned Persons (POS RIP), is a rapidly growing national organization to provide education, information, and advocacy at all levels with regard to sexual assault and enslavement behind bars; to provide encouragement, advice, counseling and legal assistance to survivors; to train institutional staff to deal with the problem realistically; to encourage and disseminate research; and to encourage changes in current practice and policy which contribute to the institutionalization of prisoner rape, a life-and-death matter in the age of AIDS. Based on previous research surveys, we estimate that some 360,000 male and 5,000 female prisoners are sexually victimized annually, that the youngest, smallest, nonviolent and least serious offenders are the most common targets, that most victims and nearly all prisoner rapists are heterosexual by choice, but that known homosexuals are most likely to be raped and least likely to be believed by staff; that virtually none of the victims are treated for extreme rape trauma and are, therefore, when released, much more prone to violence than when they entered confinement, and that the heaviest concentrations of prisoner rape occur in male juvenile institutions and big-city jails. We favor realistic classification, prisoner orientation, staff training, psychological aftercare, investigation, and reporting, realistic recognition of "survival-driven" sexuality ("protective pairing"), and provision of condoms; we oppose "protective custody" situations which in effect punish the victim, discourage reporting, and are often unsafe. Working relationship with Safer Society Press and Project, but not a formal affiliation; member, National Coalition for Victim Assistance and National Victim Center. Publications below are available and a list of shorter publications, which are revised from time to time, are also available.

NIST Technical Publications

Periodical

Journal of Research of the National Institute of Standards and Technology—Reports NIST research and development in those disciplines of the physical and engineering sciences in which the Institute is active. These include physics, chemistry, engineering, mathematics, and computer sciences. Papers cover a broad range of subjects, with major emphasis on measurement methodology and the basic technology underlying standardization. Also included from time to time are survey articles on topics closely related to the Institute's technical and scientific programs. Issued six times a year.

Nonperiodicals

Monographs—Major contributions to the technical literature on various subjects related to the Institute's scientific and technical activities.

Handbooks—Recommended codes of engineering and industrial practice (including safety codes) developed in cooperation with interested industries, professional organizations, and regulatory bodies.

Special Publications—Include proceedings of conferences sponsored by NIST, NIST annual reports, and other special publications appropriate to this grouping such as wall charts, pocket cards, and bibliographies.

National Standard Reference Data Series—Provides quantitative data on the physical and chemical properties of materials, compiled from the world's literature and critically evaluated. Developed under a worldwide program coordinated by NIST under the authority of the National Standard Data Act (Public Law 90-396). NOTE: The Journal of Physical and Chemical Reference Data (JPCRD) is published bimonthly for NIST by the American Chemical Society (ACS) and the American Institute of Physics (AIP). Subscriptions, reprints, and supplements are available from ACS, 1155 Sixteenth St., NW, Washington, DC 20056.

Building Science Series—Disseminates technical information developed at the Institute on building materials, components, systems, and whole structures. The series presents research results, test methods, and performance criteria related to the structural and environmental functions and the durability and safety characteristics of building elements and systems.

Technical Notes—Studies or reports which are complete in themselves but restrictive in their treatment of a subject. Analogous to monographs but not so comprehensive in scope or definitive in treatment of the subject area. Often serve as a vehicle for final reports of work performed at NIST under the sponsorship of other government agencies.

Voluntary Product Standards—Developed under procedures published by the Department of Commerce in Part 10, Title 15, of the Code of Federal Regulations. The standards establish nationally recognized requirements for products, and provide all concerned interests with a basis for common understanding of the characteristics of the products. NIST administers this program in support of the efforts of private-sector standardizing organizations.

Order the following NIST publications—FIPS and NISTIRs—from the National Technical Information Service, Springfield, VA 22161.

Federal Information Processing Standards Publications (FIPS PUB)—Publications in this series collectively constitute the Federal Information Processing Standards Register. The Register serves as the official source of information in the Federal Government regarding standards issued by NIST pursuant to the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 as amended, Public Law 89-306 (79 Stat. 1127), and as implemented by Executive Order 11717 (38 FR 12315, dated May 11, 1973) and Part 6 of Title 15 CFR (Code of Federal Regulations).

NIST Interagency Reports (NISTIR)—A special series of interim or final reports on work performed by NIST for outside sponsors (both government and nongovernment). In general, initial distribution is handled by the sponsor; public distribution is by the National Technical Information Service, Springfield, VA 22161, in paper copy or microfiche form.
